CHAIRPERSON'S MESSAGE

Mrs. Sadischya G. Gaunker
Chairperson

Dear Readers,

It is a true honour to serve this esteemed institution, which is steadily becoming a beacon of knowledge rooted in humility and humanity. I congratulate all students, staff, and faculty on their accomplishments so far.

Like a tree that selflessly gives throughout its life and even after, I seek the blessings of Shree Sateri Pisani to offer my humble service with dedication. I pray for GMFC to reach greater heights in excellence and integrity.

In today's fast-evolving knowledge-driven world, information is the key to success. At Goa Multi-Faculty College, we strive for excellence by fostering a student-friendly environment that encourages innovation, exploration, and self-realisation. Our students continue to excel, achieving success in diverse fields.

We view our students as our greatest assets. Our holistic approach aims to help them grow—not just intellectually, but also morally, socially, and spiritually. Equal emphasis is placed on sports, cultural activities, and extracurricular engagement. We instill in our students a sense of social responsibility by encouraging their participation in community-driven initiatives such as blood donation camps, clean city drives, environmental awareness programmes, village adoption projects, NSS activities, and more. These experiences shape their character and foster well-rounded personal development.

In closing, I extend my best wishes to every student as they chart their own paths and build a future of promise and purpose. May each of you excel in your journey, carrying forward the proud legacy of GMFC wherever life takes you.

Best Wishes,
Mrs. Sadischya G. Gaunker
Chairperson

We build a bright future at Goa Multi-Faculty College!

EDITORIAL

Dear Readers,

It gives me great joy to present to you the Second Edition of the GMFC College Magazine — a humble yet heartfelt attempt to capture the spirit, achievements, and aspirations of our GMFC family.

With each passing year, we witness remarkable growth — not just in numbers or events, but in confidence, creativity, and the willingness to make a difference. This edition stands as a reflection of that very progress. Within these pages, you will find stories of academic excellence, creative brilliance, social commitment, and spirited participation in co-curricular and extracurricular activities.

What makes this edition truly special is the voice it gives to our students and faculty. From thoughtful articles and poems to glimpses of our sports achievements and outreach activities, every contribution echoes the vibrancy and diversity of our campus life. It is encouraging to see how our community is evolving — adapting to changes, embracing opportunities, and making meaningful contributions both within and beyond the classroom.

As editor, it has been a privilege to witness the enthusiasm and sincerity of every individual who contributed to this magazine. I thank all our writers, artists, coordinators, and the editorial team for their time, effort, and commitment. Your work has brought this edition to life.

I also take this opportunity to encourage each of you to actively participate in future editions. Whether it's a small idea, a powerful story, or a creative expression — your voice matters.

Let this magazine not just be a record of the past year but also a source of inspiration and motivation as we look ahead. May it remind us of how far we've come and how much further we can go — together.

Warm Wishes,
Dr. Nisha Sawant
Editor

HAPPY FAREWELL

Three years ago, you stepped inside,
With curious minds and hearts open wide.
From the first hello to this last goodbye,
Time has flown in the blink of an eye.

Debugging errors, fixing the flaws,
Breaking the rules, yet knowing the laws.
In paging and scheduling, you found your way,
Like life itself—no delays, no stray.

Each submission, project, and viva,
Was just a step to who you are.
Now as you leave, a brand-new start,
With knowledge strong and fire in heart.

Remember this class, our moments shared,
The lessons learned, how much I cared.
No matter how far, no matter where,
This place will always be right here.

So go ahead, my TYBCA crew,
The world is waiting just for you.
With tech in your hands and dreams so bright,
step into tomorrow—shine your light

Burnt by the Sky

I walked and walked and walked
To seek the supreme sun
I shed the tears of exhaustion
Only to be burnt by the sky

I bled and bled and bled
As the sky pierced my skin
My bones shook with agony
As I begged the sky to touch the sun

The Sky looked and looked and looked at me
As it opened its doors with disdain in its eyes
Condemning me unworthy to touch the sun
Casting me in the pit of the abyss

मागणारी संवाद

प्रथम वर्ष BBA च्या विद्यार्थ्यांनी सभापतिपदाची जबाबदारी पार पाडली आहे. त्यांनी उत्तम प्रकारे ही जबाबदारी सांभाळली. आज आपण एक प्रेरणादायी उदाहरण समोर ठेवणार आहोत आणि तो आहे स्वानुभव सांगणारा संवाद लेखन.

आज आपण स्वानुभव लिहू पण मित्रांनो, आपला स्वानुभव लिहिताना सजगतेने आपल्या भावना त्या शब्दांत मांडणं हे फार प्रभावी आणि कौशल्यपूर्ण पद्धत आहे.

अनेकांना संवादलेखन ही गोष्ट कठीण वाटते. पण मित्रांनो, तुम्ही तुमच्या शब्दांतच स्वानुभव लिहायला सुरुवात करा. मग बघा, आपल्यातली रचना, सर्जनशक्ती आणि भावना व्यक्त करण्याची ताकद वाढते.

अनेकांनी अनुभव संवादलेखन सांगितले. अशा प्रकारे लेखनाचे अनेक फायदे आहेत.
फायदे:

1. अनुभवातून विचारांच्या वाटा मिळतात.
2. आपल्या आयुष्यातल्या महत्वाच्या गोष्टी आपल्याला लक्षात येतात.
3. मित्रांच्या अनुभवांना आपले कुठे जुळते, सोपे समजते.
4. आपल्या विचारांना वाट मोकळी मिळते.
5. विविध विषयांना आपल्या मेंदूत जागा निर्माण होते.
6. विविध विषय आपल्याला प्रेरणा देतात.
7. आपल्याला आपले काम करण्याची नवी दिशा मिळते.
8. आपल्या अनुभवांचे पुनरावलोकन आपण करता येते.
अनुभवांची ही मांडणी वा उपक्रमाव्दारे, त्यांचा प्रामाणिकपणे आत्मपरीक्षणासाठी उपयोग होतो.

संतांची भाषाशैली ही खूप ललित आहे. त्यांनी अनेक वेळा एका कुणीतरी व्यक्तीचा अनुभव मांडला आहे. आपण आपल्या आयुष्यात कुठेही विशेष जाणीव होते त्यांना त्यांचं प्रामाणिक लेखन आहे.

तर मित्रांनो, आपले आयुष्य क्षणभंगुर असून त्याला शरीर व मन यांचा समतोल आवश्यक आहे.

म्हणूनच स्वानुभवासाठी वेळोवेळी आपल्याला आपण केलेल्या कार्याचे व स्वानुभूतीच्या प्रेमाचा स्वभाव ठेवायला पाहिजे.

Knowledge Beyond Exams

A clear mind, a fresh page,
Exams take the center stage.
You've walked the path, you've done it all,
Now write with heart, stand strong, stand tall.

Exams will pass, like seasons do,
But what you learn stays true with you.
Chasing marks is a fleeting race,
Show your wisdom, take your place.

No battle here, no race to run,
Just moments under a steady sun.
Breathe, believe, begin anew,
The best of you will see this through.

Echoes of Me

The world sees flawless me, but who knows what's within me?

*The girl within me wants to live,
Turning the pages to become a better
me,*

*But all I see is inexorable me.
Even if everything around me
changes,*

I taste euphoria whenever I hear my name,

*A soft hymn the stars hum back to me.
Yet beneath the flawless skin they see,
Is a soul that craves to simply be.
Among shifting winds and passing days,*

I'll find myself in my own soft gaze.

“Our Golden Days”

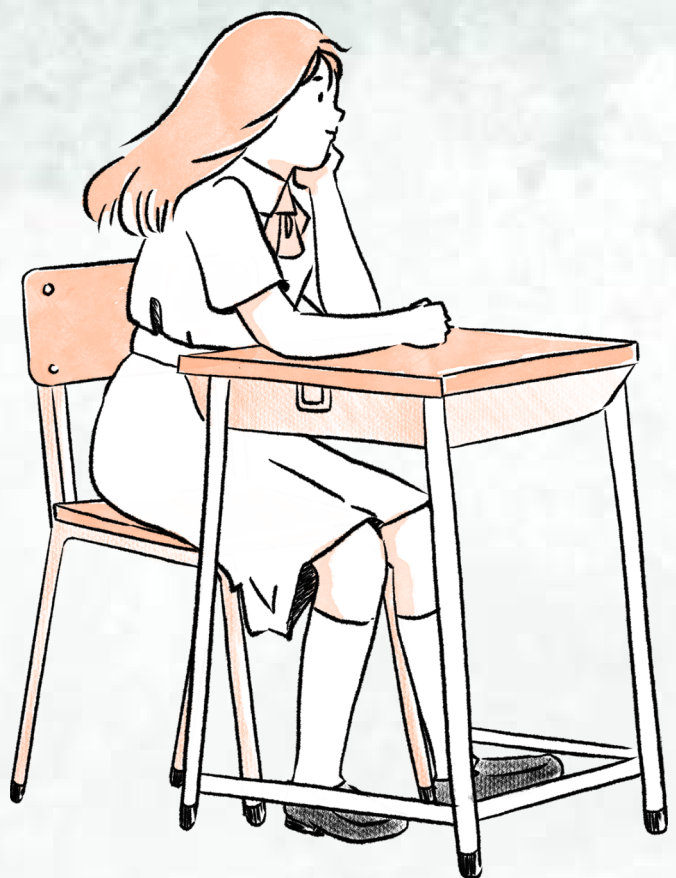

College isn't just a place to learn,
It's where memories laugh and moments turn. +

From sleepy lectures to late-night
tea,

These are the days that stay with
me. +

We fight, we cried, we stood so tall,
Practiced all night, was full of grace
This is how our presentations takes place. +

In those small halls, we lived it all.
Years may fly, but I'll always say—“These were my golden days for sure.” +

Teri Yaad...

Hasta Rahu Mein Teri Baton Par
Rota Rahu Akele Mein

Tu Jo Mere Dil Ke Pass Tha,
Mene Liye Tu Hee Khas Tha,
Harpal Tera Yaad Tha,
Ek Tha Woh Saal

Khush Tha Yun Akela Mein,
Tere Bina Jeen Acha Tha,
Ab Kaise Jeeyun Bata?

The World - My Perspective

The world is beautiful with perspectives vast,
Our view holds power to go far,
It shapes the way our world's been cast,
Yet makes many life sour.

The world is full of joys so vast,
We chase illusions in our race,
But finding bliss in moments passed,
Can make the world a better place.

The world is full to meet our needs,
Yet we choose greed above all others,
No matter what, it never feeds,
In chasing more, we hurt our brothers.

The world is vast, but our lives are not,
Let's make it bright for one another,
Let's forgive and let the pain be forgot,
And live in peace with every other.

Love, Friendship, and Finding Balance: Enjoying the Best Years of College Life

College is often hailed as the best phase of life—and with good reason. It's a time of discovery, freedom, and profound personal growth. For many, these years mark the first true taste of independence, a season where academic exploration is matched only by emotional awakening. Between lectures, assignments, and late-night study sessions, students find themselves forming deep friendships—and sometimes, experiencing their first love. The real challenge, though, isn't just to survive these years, but to truly live them. The secret? Balance. Psychologically, college-age youth stand at a pivotal crossroads. Erik Erikson, a renowned psychologist, called this the stage of "identity versus role confusion." In simple terms, it's a time when you're figuring out who you are and where you belong. Relationships—both romantic and platonic—become central to this journey. Romantic connections can bring a rush of emotional intimacy, trust, and vulnerability. They offer companionship and support, making you feel seen and understood in a world that's suddenly much bigger than before. But if not handled with maturity, these relationships can also become sources of distraction, anxiety, or even emotional exhaustion. It's important to remember: a meaningful relationship should never overshadow your personal growth or academic ambitions—it should enrich them. Friendships, meanwhile, are the unsung heroes of college life. Good friends quickly become your chosen family. They're the ones who laugh with you over chai breaks, pull all-nighters by your side before exams, and celebrate every small victory. Positive psychology tells us that social connections are among the strongest predictors of happiness and mental well-being. The inside jokes, the shared struggles, the collective excitement over campus events—these are the moments that truly shape your college experience. Yet, amid all these emotions, it's easy to lose your footing. Many students feel pressured to maintain relationships even when they become draining, or to prioritize romance over academics, believing it's all part of the journey. But real enjoyment of college life doesn't come from excess—it comes from balance. Mindfulness is key. Nurture your relationships, but not at the expense of your own values or future dreams. A healthy relationship—whether romantic or platonic—should inspire you to be your best self, not pull you away from your ambitions. Communication is essential. Learn to express your boundaries, be honest about your feelings, and respect others' space. These skills strengthen relationships and prevent misunderstandings. At the same time, practice self-awareness. College is a time to try new things, make mistakes, and learn from them. It's okay if some friendships fade or relationships end. What matters is the growth you experience along the way. Ultimately, the college journey isn't just about grades or career choices—it's about becoming whole. It's about finding joy in the little things: spontaneous trips, heartfelt conversations, cultural fests, and those rare moments of deep connection. Falling in love, making memories, experiencing heartbreak, building lifelong friendships—each of these is a thread in the tapestry of your college story. As you navigate this exciting phase, remember: you don't have to have it all figured out. You're still becoming. So don't hold back from loving, laughing, learning, or even failing. These years are yours to live—fully, freely, and fearlessly. In the end, what stays with you isn't just your grades or awards, but the people who walked alongside you— and the person you became along the way.

AI: More Than Just a Bot

When OpenAI's ChatGPT launched in November 2022, it rapidly became a household name and sparked conversations about the future of technology. For the first time, the tech industry had a tool that could genuinely challenge Google's dominance as the go-to source for information. Google responded by rolling out its own AI-powered features, like AI Overviews, which now enhance search results by offering summarized information with sources and citations. Fast forward to 2025, and the landscape is filled with countless AI tools-if you can think of a task, there's probably an AI that can help with it. The rise of AI has noticeably changed how we search for information. Since these tools became mainstream, there's been a significant drop in traditional Google searches. People naturally gravitate towards convenience, and AI delivers just that. Instead of sifting through pages of search results, you can ask a single question and get a concise, well-sourced answer-often with citations ready for deeper exploration. Personally, I find myself turning to ChatGPT for everything from quick fact-checks and grammar corrections to brainstorming notes and creating presentation outlines. The convenience is hard to resist. Almost everyone who uses a smartphone interacts with AI daily, whether it's through trendy filters, essay generators, or video editing apps. Yet, I've noticed that many of my classmates still treat AI like a basic search engine or a simple bot, rather than as a dynamic companion. But AI has evolved beyond being just a tool for completing tasks. For example, you can customize how ChatGPT responds: whether you want a formal tone, a friendly chat, or even sibling-like banter, it can adapt. Try making your interactions more conversational, rather than sticking to rigid prompts. How you phrase your questions or prompts can greatly influence the quality of AI's responses. For instance, instead of simply asking, "Write me an essay on how good my college is," try something like, "I need to highlight the unique strengths of my college in an essay-can you suggest some key points and ways to present them?" The difference in results is striking. The first prompt gives you a generic essay, while the second leads to more focused, relevant content that truly showcases your college's strengths. Beyond academics and professional tasks, AI is also becoming a personal companion. Tools like Character.AI are now popular for people seeking a safe space to express themselves or unwind. The way these tools can maintain engaging, empathetic conversations is impressive. They can even adjust their tone-whether through text or voice-to match your preferences. This can be especially helpful for introverts or anyone who finds it hard to open up to others. While AI isn't a replacement for real psychologists yet, it's evolving rapidly and could become even more supportive in the future. AI's potential keeps expanding. Canva recently introduced Canva Code, an AI that allows users to build websites and apps without any coding knowledge. This could democratize app and website creation, giving more people the power to bring their ideas to life. The key is to master AI and make it work for you-customize it to fit your style, whether for college assignments or ambitious projects. Don't just copy and paste what AI generates; use it as a foundation to develop your own ideas and skills. For example, if you use an AI to create a PowerPoint outline, review the designs, and then try building your own presentation based on those ideas. Ultimately, AI is here to assist, and not replace your mind. Use it alongside traditional tools like Google, and always take the time to read, understand, and verify the information you receive. Treat AI as a companion-something that can inspire and support you, rather than just a bot that spits out answers.
